The Princess

Muhammad Ajmal

Assistant Professor of English
G.C.University, Faisalabad,
Layyah Campus, Pakistan.

“Man is more profound and deep than an unfathomable ocean. He reaches the highest point in goodness and falls in the abyss of deprivation as well. A man whose duty is to foster probity turns to cultivate vulgarity. All of us are equally responsible to expose such faces that are black sheep and we ought to play our role to eradicate evil around us.” I read all this in a book and then started thinking about man and it took more than an hour. I was not feeling sleepy that night and was trying to kill time in reading. Suddenly an anthology of short fiction came in my hands and I began reading. It said;

“This is not fair sir. I have done well in my paper but that bitch is expected to stand first.” She spoke fiercely and wistfully to her venerable teacher.

“Mind your language, is this the way to talk and get first position”? He tried to snub.

She yelled out. “No one cares for me. Not even you. You gave your words. You bear in mind that”? You said you would try your best to help me snatching top notch position. You said I was the most ...”

“Ah...be patient and calm down please. Look. “He is approaching. Better to talk later on this. I’ll myself make a call and inform you about”. He uttered.

This was the academic discussion between honorable mentor and decent disciple. She told me, “I would be first at any cost because everything is fair in love and war. And this is war right now. And I must be winner. I have every reason to be first. That ugly face is ignominy for me if she excels in grades”. She was in great hurry as she was expecting her fiancé at restaurant that day and she wanted to avail the opportunity because her parents were at farmhouse and would be back late night.

It was midnight when she called him.

She dialed the number that was busy on other call. Again it was busy and she angrily called him names.

It was an hour later when he picked her call.

Hello..hello..hello

“You are such reckless person and have shaken my trust on you. I am so gloomy and couldn’t have my dinner just because of you.” The girl said.

“What happened? Let me know and don’t beat about the bush.” He asked.

“Very good dear.”. She said with satirical tone.

“Just listen please I am trying my best to do some thing for you. First let me be acquainted with when we are going to meet.” He demanded.

“No, it’s not possible, sir”. She tenderly replied.

O.K DEAR

“Choice is yours and the ball is in your court whether you love your future or not. Now, it’s up to you dear”. He urged.

She loved her future, she loved her career, and she loved her position indeed.

For the sake of her parents’ dream, she must get first position. It was her burning desire to fulfill her parent’s life with happiness and strive for excellence.

And all the matter was discussed...

Although it was not easy for that decent and receptive disciple to do all that was demanded for the sake of grades yet she decided to do every possible endeavor because she was a shining student and loved her future. The gentle girl was burning the midnight oil. Anyhow the venue was fixed that was a park and then they were moving towards a hotel for family room and it was just one day before the result display. It was February 20, 2014 and the weather was so enjoyable. She dressed herself beautifully and her long black hair was floating in the air and she was more than a princess on that day. She reached in time and it showed her punctual and meticulous behavior. She was a prodigy indeed. She smiled as Belinda and made the world gay.

“Hello”. Tender voice said.

“Hello”. Warm voice welcomed.

Both shake hands.

The arrangement was by now made for the princess and they were both alone. Come in please. This way please. The room displayed artistic frame of mind and everything was spick and span. She was impressed by the cleanliness and perfection in every matter.

“I can’t believe I am with you”. She uttered.

“What can I do for you dear”? He joked.

“You just do what you have promised and I’ll do the same. I know very well that no pain no gain”. She confirmed.

They spent the whole day. The princess was overjoyed that she lost something to get everything. It was the sagacity, determination and erudition that brought her top notch position in examination. Next day she was more than happy among her friends when her name was at the top of the list.
