The Drunk and The Dead

Dr. John Wesly

Associate Professor of English
Loyola Institute of Technology and Management
Dhulipalla, Satenapalli, Guntur AP India

There was a party I attended,
I remembered it is not good to drink.
Instead drank soda, felt proud inside,
The way taught in school and college
Neither did i drink and drive, Even though others forced.
I suppose did the right thing,
the party finally ended,
everyone drove in their cars home
I got into my car, raced ahead
Dreamed of getting home
To get home in one piece.
I was not drunk,
but, responsible committed towards future goal.
I started to drive away,
pulled out onto the road,
The other car hit me like a load.
And I lay there on the pavement,
Dying and soaked in blood
I heard the policeman say,
"The other guy is drunk," I'm the one who will pay.
The costliest price of my life
I said I'm lying here dying,
I wish he would have not drunk.
How could this happen to me,
Because i am not drunk
My life is going to burst like a balloon.
blood all around me, most of it is mine.
I hear the medic I'll die in a short time.
He was probably at the same party where I was.
The only difference is, he drank, i didn't People drink and ruin their entire life and others feeling sharp pains now, pains just like a knife.
guy who hit me is walking, and i am dying don't think it is fair, i am lying here dying all he can do is stare, stare and stare.
