Romio & Juliut in Verse

Dr. Richa Tripathi

Juvenile God loves to play with being
Otter some childish words after seeing “Romio and Juliut, you are destined to be together,
Not for now but forever & ever.”

Two divine doves merged within the whole,
Full of colours, rainbows, love songs and rolls
Gone within each other, unaware from foretold
Separates by the creator, controller of their souls

On soil, doomed to be Shakespeare’s Romeo & Juliet
Celestial lovers strained to be a corral’s Muppet
Severely attracted as currents of electric magnets
Victims of humans, who harm its own species on planet

At Victorian ball, eye to eye & stable gaze to re-awake,
“First Love at first sight” is precarious for heaven’s sake
Old eternal love blooms, all conventions to break
Unconscious Romeo and bashful Juliet, Both at stake.

Long lasting awaken nights, thirst for undying worship
Romeo pours his tender beams on Juliet for fellowship
“No desire to call ‘a Man of strong will or courageous merit’
Allow me to be a sick if loving you is a ritual of weak spirit

Naïve from domestic homicide and bloody cores,

Flanked in ocean of eternal love, lacking shore
Love lives in words, hatred is all over to adore
True Lovers abide vicious pain not to die on floor.

Runaway Doves, turning love in to untidy knot
Away from, puzzled characters and lamenting plot
Object Shakespeare as they protest almighty God
A clandestine nuptial, a lovely rain in vile drought

Unaware from the perpetual misfortune, escort with love
Become soft target of hierarchical fights, helpless doves
Blood, agony, violence, hatred and poisonous curves
Determined to prove the existence of love is far above

Death is never frightening but evermore separation
'Love conquers all' is an erroneous assumption
How painful is to see your true love's detention
Death is the gate to find love by earthy rejection.
