Parshuram

Dev Vrat Sharma

Peace, peace, let peace alone reign
Do not invoke my name in a martial strain,
I have long hung my axe divine
My bow, its string broke, quiver quarantined.
Yes indeed, I was a warrior supreme
Redeemed Mother Earth one and twenty times.
Brandished Parsu in my Righteous hands
Repulsed the Sea from Konkan lands.
Bhishma, Drona warriors great, aspired my tutelage
But all these are the feats of another Age:
Now it is not just wars, I am weary of Time.
Ram, Krishna, Buddh all returned in their prime
But I, as a Chiranjeevi am ordained to stay behind.
So the Sun will not set at Mahendragiri shrine
But hark, I see the Yugant to be near
As the Earth frets and fumes unable to bear,
The burden of existence, ready to waive
A moment meet to ensure that I exonerate.
Therefore, I, an age old warrior am waiting,
Desperately waiting, for the moment's escalation:
Vishnu's final arrival, Kalki predestine,
To be a mentor for just one more time.
